PROBLEM THIRTY-FOUR: The Suicide: A man is found dead on a bed in a room that had a bitter cold air blowing through an open window in the middle of winter. A detective was called to investigate the case, finds a suicide note, but no weapon in the room. The man had been stabbed once in the abdomen by a round shaped object. The officer also noticed a glass of pink water on a bed stand table and the dead mans hand was wet. As the officer stood pondering out the open window at the snow and icecycles hanging from the window he concludes that, indeed, it was a suicide. How did the detective decide the cause of the man's death?
