PROBLEM THIRTEEN: The Man And The Elevator: A man lives on the tenth floor of an apartment building. Each morning at 6:55 A.M., systematically, he leaves his apartment on his way to work. He walks down the hall to the elevator, takes it down to the main floor, and then leaves the building to a nearby office. Each evening, at five minutes after six, he reenters the apartment building, gets on the elevator, takes it to the eighth floor, then gets out, and promptly walks up two flights of stairs. Upon reaching the 10th floor he immediately walks down the hall and enters his room. Why does he always get out at the eighth floor and not exit at the 10th floor?
