PROBLEM TWENTY-FIVE: Bolts And Nuts: You are driving along a highway in a winter snowstorm when you suddenly discover that you have a flat tire. After jacking up the car, you proceed to remove the flat tire from the car and place the spare in its place. Suddenly, you discover that you misplaced or carelessly lost the five lug nuts that you had removed from the flat tire in the blinding, piling snow. After collecting your wits, you soon are back on the road again, and then proceed to your destination. How did you solve the problem of driving your car without the missing lug nuts?
